Awkard-Diggins Property
Big Woods Community
Private

c. 1846

Although no house was built on this land, it was part of the historical community of Big Woods since the antebellum 19th century. In 1846 it was part of the tract purchased by a free black minister, Rev. Elijah Awkard. Later in the early 20th century it was purchased by a descendant of a nearby family who settled in the community soon after the Civil War.

BUILDER/ARCHITECT

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

This tract was originally part of Rev. Elijah Awkard's property in the antebellum 19th century. He was a free black person. According to the will RWC 6/347, Awkard purchased this land (37 acres) from William Brewer in 1846. In his will he divided his land in half, giving the southern-most tract to his grandson Jeremiah Awkard. This tract is a part of that southern portion. Jeremiah Awkard inherited the land in 1883. The land is later acquired by Mabel Awkard Talley, the daughter of Jeremiah Awkard, and in 1919 she conveyed it to John H.A. Awkard as recorded in deed 282/31. In 1920, the deed conveying the land to Milton Courtney Diggins and Mabel B. Diggins was recorded. They continue to own the property. Though they never built a house here, the site is significant in that Diggins was raised nearby in the log house of his parents (M: 12-42-6). This land represents his ongoing desire to retain a link to his ancestral community.
